What To Do With A Major In….

Law Enforcement Associate’s Degree
Law Enforcement

This degree provides training that will produce well-rounded and competent law enforcement practitioners. This include, but is not limited to, competence in oral and written communication, an understanding of psychological and social issues relevant to criminal justice, the role of law enforcement in social control and in the larger criminal justice system; and an appreciation for the dilemma inherent in policing a free society.

As a law enforcement officer, you will often be put into difficult situations with citizens of the jurisdiction you serve. Your duty with any of the professions is to protect and serve the citizens that pay for protective services. Many careers will have specific training and job responsibilities, but all will involve using communication to coordinate with anyone you supervise, supervises you, or the general populace. There may be dangerous situations with any of the careers listed, and in order to persevere with any of these professions, you will need to take pride in your career.

Skills and Competencies

As in most other fields, strong interpersonal communication and organizational skills are a must for any professional. Other valuable skills and competencies specific to the Law Enforcement Officers include knowledge of human behavior, discipline and an understanding of the world around you.

Course Work

This degree includes the following courses as part of the program requirements, and specific major requirements along with liberal studies and graduation requirements.

Criminal Justice Core
CJ 110 Introduction to Criminal Justice (4 cr.)
CJ 212 The Law Enforcement Function (4 cr.)
CJ 299 Police Academy (12 cr.)

Criminal Justice Electives (8 cr.)
General Elective (12 cr.)

Detailed course descriptions can be found at www.nmu.edu/bulletin.

Career Development

You should begin the resume-building process as soon as you can. The Academic and Career Advisement Center can assist you with career planning, while Career Services will help you fine tune your resume and look for jobs related to your field. In the meantime, the more hands-on experience you have, the better the chances are that you will find a job. Becoming involved in a professional related internship is a way to develop your professional skills and gain experience. Your academic course work is important as well, so be sure to maintain a high grade point average.

Additional Considerations

Law Enforcement is an Associate of Applied Science degree that requires 65 credits to complete. This should take about four semesters or two years to complete.

The Police Academy is included in the Law Enforcement degree. This is a 16-week, 800-hour police training school. At the completion of training, candidates are eligible to become certified as a police officer through the Michigan Commission on Law Enforcement Standards (MCOLES).

Law Enforcement graduates have the option to further their own educational goals by applying the credits earned towards a four-year baccalaureate degree, such as Criminal Justice. Some careers may demand that you further your own credentials.

Job Outlook

National statistics show that law enforcement will expand at a 7% average rate for the next decade. Average salaries for positions ranged from $47,000 to $55,000 depending on advancement and additional educational training.
