3.7.1 The Student Grievance Committee will be prepared to convene in the event that its services are required to hear student complaints in accordance with established School and University policy. Student grievances are limited to grades and will adhere to the procedures outlined in the Northern Michigan University Student Handbook.

3.8 Individually Elected Offices and Committees

3.8.1 Procedures for electing persons to fill offices held by a single person (Faculty Senate, Bargaining Council, CAC, etc.) will be as they are for committees except that some of these positions may demand selections at times other than in the fall and may be accommodated as necessary.

4.0 APPOINTMENTS, FACULTY AFFAIRS

4.1 After authorization for an academic appointment to the School of Education is given, it shall be recommended that candidates are required to present evidence of at least three years of relevant full-time K-12 experience. Exceptions will be made only if there is specific departmental need for other types of qualifications. When a position is to be filled in the School of Education, a secret ballot will be conducted among the members of the school and a majority vote is necessary to recommend that a particular person be hired. This recommendation will then be communicated to the School Director.

4.2 Professional Development Funds

4.2.1 Professional Development Funds will be allocated in accordance with the Master Agreement.

4.2.1.1 Professional Development Funds will be allocated to each faculty member by the School Director. Unused professional development funds will automatically be banked for up to three years, with a record of such banking kept by the School Director.

5.0 ANNUAL EVALUATION, PROMOTION, AND TENURE

5.1 Yearly faculty evaluation as well as recommendation for promotion and/or tenure within the School of Education will originate in the Evaluation and Personnel Committee in accordance with pertinent provisions of the current Master Agreement. The committee membership will have access to School personnel files for the purpose of its work.

5.1.1 Annual evaluation materials must be submitted to the Evaluation and Personnel Committee on or before February 1 of each year.

5.1.1.1 In addition to materials specified in the NMU-AAUP Master Agreement, faculty will use the approved School of Education student evaluation forms, and summaries will be included with the annual evaluation materials.

5.1.2 Each semester of the first two years of a new member’s contract requires a visitation. Such visitation will be a classroom visit or other “on-the-job” visit as the person’s job description dictates. Other visitations can be made in accordance with the wishes of the School and/or the Evaluation and Personnel Committee.

The School stipulates visitation as the following:

A pre-visit conference in which the Committee member and faculty member outline the parameters and goals of the visitation;

A classroom or other “on-the-job” visit in which the Committee member observes the staff faculty member; and

A written report of the visit in which the Committee member composes a detailed narrative of the faculty member’s performance in light of the bylaws and the national teaching standards set by the Teacher Education Accreditation Council.

5.1.3 In addition to the regular annual evaluation, a faculty member may request an evaluation at any time specifically for review of promotion potential. Criteria used in this review and evaluation will be the same as those used in the regular annual evaluation.

5.2 Eligibility criteria as they are applied for promotion and tenure will be as indicated in the NMU-AAUP Master Agreement.
5.2.1 School of Education faculty affected by the NMU-AAUP Master Agreement are eligible for promotion and tenure and will be evaluated under the judgmental criteria in the School of Education Bylaws.

5.3 Faculty applying for promotion to the next rank must provide evidence of achievement commensurate with that rank.

Consistent with the mission of the School of Education to prepare professional educators, teaching is the primary consideration in evaluation. As both educators of teachers and teachers ourselves, each member of the School of Education must demonstrate significant and individually distinct achievement in the area of Assigned Professional Responsibilities. As evaluation is a matter of qualitative judgment rather than quantitative accumulation of things done, the applicant for promotion and/or tenure must demonstrate the significance of her or his accomplishments within the mission of the School of Education. Consistent with this mission of the School of Education, teaching is the primary consideration in evaluation.

5.3.1 The broad outlines of the judgmental criteria for promotion and tenure, focusing on the three judgmental areas of (1) assigned responsibilities, (2) scholarship and/or professional development, and (3) service are in accordance with the Master Agreement. The more specific criteria contained in these bylaws, including the examples used, must be understood to amplify the language in the Master Agreement, not diverge from it. Further, the judgmental criteria were developed in consideration of national accreditation standards.

The following examples are intended to be illustrative, and are not complete, ordered by rank, or exclusive. Other types of activities will be considered. The lists include common types of activities and are meant to establish a norm. Furthermore, where there are lists with optional activities, it is not expected that any individual will be active in all the examples listed. When a promotion is being considered, a history of sustained professional achievements of the types listed or comparable ones will be expected.

The demonstration of achievements for promotion is understood to be cumulative. For those who have received a promotion at NMU or another institution of higher learning, the time period considered for promotion begins at the time of application for the last received promotion. For those without prior service, the time period considered for promotion begins at the time of appointment at NMU. The demonstration for tenure is also understood to be cumulative. When prior service is explicitly granted at the time of appointment, the time period considered for promotion begins with the prior service period.

5.3.2 Faculty applying for tenure must demonstrate effective performance expected for promotion to the rank of Associate Professor.

In the judgmental criteria for teaching and other assigned responsibilities, the words “emergent professional competence”, “mastery of teaching and advising”, and “unique and individually effective contributions” are used to characterize the respective standards for assistant, associate, and full professor; similarly, for professional development the same differentiating role is played by the words “a record of exploring and defining”, “a record of defining, developing and disseminating”, and “a record of sustained growth in a clearly defined program contributing to the professional discourse community”; for professional service the same role is played by the words “membership”, “performing leadership roles”, and “developing and mentoring educational leaders.” The purpose of the characterizing phrases is to indicate the need for faculty achievements in each area of judgment to meet a higher standard for each rank. The standard needed to be achieved is that of the intellectual community at NMU as embodied in the Master Agreement and in the bylaws of the School of Education. Finally, Section 5 of the Master Agreement requires faculty going for promotion to state whether they choose to emphasize scholarship and/or professional development or service. Concurrency with the faculty member's relative emphasis on "scholarship and/or professional development" or service will be provided by the departmental evaluation committee and be subject to approval of the department head.

5.4 Judgmental Criteria

5.4.1 Achievements in Teaching and Other Assigned Responsibilities

Teaching and other assigned responsibilities include both of the following areas: development of professional practice and student welfare.

Professional Practices that confirms our standards include, but are not limited to:

- undergraduate/graduate teaching online;
- designing or developing field, clinic, manuals, guides, and/or equipment;
- fostering a spirit of reflective inquiry into professional practice;
- designing new course or program offerings and/or make substantial revisions to existing courses or programs; and/or
- participation in accreditation (state and national levels).

Unique and individually effective

5.4.2 Judgmental Criteria for Assistant Professor

As outlined in 5.4.1, satisfactory performance requires that faculty members demonstrate abilities and accomplishments as evidence of their emergent professional competence in the community of professional practice.

5.4.3 Judgmental Criteria for Associate Professor

As outlined in 5.4.1, satisfactory performance requires that faculty members demonstrate mastery of teaching and advising as evidence of their professional competence in the community of professional practice.

5.4.4 Judgmental Criteria for Professor
As outlined in 5.4.1, satisfactory performance requires that faculty members show continued growth in professional competence through mastery of teaching and advising and present a record of unique and individually effective contributions to the community of professional practice.

5.4.2 Scholarship and/or Professional Development

As learners ourselves we are committed to an ongoing examination of our vision of the ideal so that we are always in the process of moving our practice and that of our students to excellence. Our participation in scholarship and/or professional development compels us to read and reflect upon the latest research in our fields whereby attendance at conferences, consultations and collaborations with colleagues and students, and reviewing original manuscripts, etc. enables us to work toward a more clear articulation of our own ideas and knowledge in our professional practice, through a variety of professional discourse communities. The nature of teacher education, as such, causes us to conduct research and create reports, materials and activities that further the professional development and personal habits and character of ourselves and our students. Such activities and reports are carried on in peer institutions across the country.

Boyer (1990) describes four forms of scholarship in Scholarship Reconsidered. Pertinent to the institution and discipline or sub-discipline are the scholarship of integration and the scholarship of application. Integration involves synthesis of information across disciplines, across topics within a discipline, or across time while application goes beyond the service duties of a faculty to those within or outside the University and involves the rigor and application of disciplinary expertise with results that can be shared with and/or evaluated by peers. The relative value or number of such documents, in terms of scholarship, may apply more to their worth to the institution and discipline or sub-discipline. “Scholarship and/or professional development is one category.” The following examples of scholarship and/or professional development are illustrative and not meant to be mandatory, nor is the list exclusive.

The scholarship of discovery involves original production or testing of a theory, principle, knowledge, or artistic creation.

Examples may include but are not limited to:
- a traditional experimental survey;
- quantitative and/or qualitative study and research for professional reports;
- an artistic or literary artifact (such as a fiction or non-fiction writing, art exhibition, musical or theatrical performance).

As confirmed by peer review such as:
- peer-reviewed presentations at various local, regional, state, national and international conferences, colloquia or workshops;
- peer-reviewed articles in educationally related journals and/or periodicals;
- books or chapters in books; and/or
- a book in a subject specialty area.

The scholarship of integration involves using knowledge found within and across disciplines to create an original understanding or insight that reveals larger intellectual patterns.

Examples may include but are not limited to:
- a textbook or synthesis that summarizes what is known about a topic or process;
- a curated artistic exhibition;
- an edited anthology or a theoretical analysis;
- national accreditation reports for TEAC (these require a proven methodology);
- published reports for the State of Michigan Department of Education (MDE);
- program surveys as required by the MDE;
- publication of evaluation tools for the teacher education program at the individual and institutional level;
- leadership in professionally related focus groups; and/or
- use of theory to teach and reflect on teaching.
The scholarship of application involves bringing knowledge to bear in addressing a significant issue or problem by using existing research or creative activities to influence current or future conditions.

Examples may include but are not limited to:
- providing expert testimony to legislative bodies, policy makers, or professional organizations at the local, state, regional, national and/or international level;
- invited presentations from international, national, regional, state and local professional agencies or organizations;
- a competitive grant proposal;
- white paper associated with consultancies or grants; and/or
- writing/preparing comprehensive program evaluations or technical reports to assess the effectiveness of public, private, and charter school programs.

The scholarship of teaching involves proposing and empirically testing a pedagogical procedure that transforms or improves teaching practices.

Examples may include but are not limited to:
- a systematic comparison of learning environments;
- dissemination for peer review of course specific assessment tools to measure teacher candidate content knowledge, skills, and/or dispositions;
- production of materials and instructional aides for use in classroom, laboratory, or clinic;
- an impact analysis for learning activities beyond the classroom (such as academic service learning);
- comprehensive assessment of teaching methodologies or programmatic outcomes related to teacher education and/or K – 12 curriculum; and/or
- writing/preparing peer reviewed pedagogical or K – 12 content material that draws on the professional training, scholarly and creative capability of the faculty member.

Professional Development

As discussed in 5.5.6.b and 3.1.1.1, in addition to and/or separate from scholarship, examples of professional development activities may include but are not limited to:
- attending professional conferences and/or workshops;
- developing a new, or maintaining a current, certification;
- obtaining an additional degree or training related to one’s field;
- engaging in post-doctoral work designed to expand one’s professional competence
- participation in professional organizations; and/or
- participation in professional development opportunities at the School of Education, college, university, local, regional state and international levels.

5.4.2.1 Judgmental Criteria for Assistant Professor

As outlined in 5.4.2, satisfactory performance requires that faculty members demonstrate a record for exploring and defining a program for contributing to the professional discourse community. Examples include, but are not limited to, preparing peer reviewed reports, grant proposals, and presentations and/or publications on at least a local or regional level are expected.

5.4.2.2 Judgmental Criteria for Associate Professor

As outlined in 5.4.2, satisfactory performance requires that faculty members demonstrate a record of defining, developing, and disseminating their contributions to the professional discourse community. Examples of success in presenting or publishing a peer reviewed report, obtaining a competitive grant, completing a peer-reviewed presentation and/or publication of research, or creation of original work is expected.

When scholarship and/or professional development is declared as an emphasis, evidence of at least two peer reviewed artifacts will be presented as described in section 5.4.2. Otherwise, evidence of two artifacts from 5.4.2, one of which must be peer reviewed.

5.4.2.3 Judgmental Criteria for Professor

As outlined in 5.4.2, satisfactory performance requires that faculty members demonstrate a record of sustained growth in a clearly defined program contributing to the professional discourse community. The reference to “a record of sustained growth in a clearly defined program...” is not meant to preclude a faculty member from changing his or her research program in a significant way. While the expectation is that the faculty member will increase participation in peer reviewed work, what is more important in all instances is the quality of the contribution to the professional discourse community.

When scholarship and/or professional development is declared as an emphasis, evidence of at least three peer reviewed artifacts will be presented as described in section 5.4.2. Otherwise, evidence of at least three artifacts from 5.4.2, two of which must be peer reviewed.

5.4.3 PROFESSIONAL SERVICE

The School of Education articulates a vision of the profession imbued with ethical and aesthetic qualities such as collaboration, character, judgment, and understanding that requires its faculty members to “embody these qualities” in all aspects of their work. The professional service area provides numerous opportunities for faculty members to demonstrate effective performance of the ethical and aesthetic qualities inherent in collaborative relationships.

Faculty members with Service as their area of emphasis for tenure and promotion are expected to participate in a significant number of service activities. Examples may include but are not limited to:

Emergent professional competence
- participation in university committees;
- new faculty mentorship;
- student recruitment and retention;
- editor of a journal or book;
- grant reviewer;
- mentoring professional educators, colleagues and students; and/or
- professional committee leadership at the regional, national or international level.

Professional competence
- participation in college committees;
- advisement and sponsorship of student organizations or projects;
- planning and implementation of workshops, symposia, or seminars;
- involvement in elementary and secondary schools or other parts of the community;
- professional committee leadership at the local or state level; and/or
- reviewer of conference proposals.

Unique and individually effective
- participation in School committees;
- service to the student body;
- active involvement in local, regional, national, or international professional organizations; and/or
- professionally related community service.

5.4.3.1 Judgmental Criteria for Assistant Professor

5.4.3.2 Judgmental Criteria for Associate Professor
Faculty members at the rank of associate professor demonstrate an ongoing commitment to professional collaboration through performing leadership roles in service activities that require sound habits of judgment and facilitation of understanding.

When service is declared as an emphasis, evidence of service in a leadership capacity within the School of Education and its mission will be provided in accordance with 5.4.3 and faculty will provide evidence for leading change at the departmental level or beyond. Otherwise, evidence for service will be demonstrated through service with at least two departmental, college, university or professional activities as outlined in 5.4.3.

5.4.3.3 Judgmental Criteria for Professor

Faculty members at the rank of Professor must demonstrate an ongoing commitment to professional collaboration through performing leadership roles, developing and mentoring educational leaders in service activities that require sound habits of judgment and facilitation of understanding.

When service is declared as an emphasis, evidence of service in a leadership capacity in two instances within the profession will be provided in accordance with 5.4.3 and faculty will provide evidence for leading change at the university level or beyond. Otherwise, evidence for service will be demonstrated through leadership in at least two departmental, college, university or professional activities as outlined in 5.4.3.

5.5 Recommendations for the award of tenure and/or promotion in the School of Education will be made by the Evaluation and Personnel Committee as specified in the Bylaws of the School of Education and in accordance with those provisions of the NMU-AAUP Master Agreement. Tenure will be awarded for demonstrated effectiveness in the three judgmental areas pertaining to the rank of associate professor and on the evidence contained in the cumulative evaluations including any new evidence in the current evaluation. Evaluations for the entire evaluation period will be considered.

6.0 PROCEDURES FOR APPLICATION FOR PROMOTION OR TENURE

6.1 Request for consideration for promotion or tenure will be initiated by the faculty member by a letter or memo to Chair of the Evaluation and Personnel Committee.

6.2 Request will be confirmed by the Chair of Evaluation and Personnel Committee and appropriate forms and instructions will be transmitted to applicant.

The Committee will examine each plan on the basis of its likelihood to succeed in enhancing the professional growth and increasing the effectiveness of the applicant as a member of the School of Education and the N.M.U. faculty. Finally, the implementation and the consistency with which each plan will accomplish the goals set forth by the applicant will be part of the evaluation.
