The NMU Computer Science Internship Program is extremely active these days, thanks in no small part to the students themselves.

In the second installment of our internship series, two of our returning interns will present their stories, insights and advice from two very different engagements. Through their presentations and subsequent Q&A sessions, we will find out what is common and what varies across internships at Intel and Disney.